A photograph of a waterfall cascading down a rocky cliff into a pool of water. The waterfall is the central focus, with water falling from the top of the frame. The surrounding area is lush with green vegetation, including ferns and other plants. The rocks are dark and jagged. At the bottom of the frame, a person with long blonde hair, wearing a red swimsuit, is sitting in the pool of water, looking up at the waterfall. The overall scene is serene and natural.

A wide-angle, fisheye photograph of a tropical beach scene. In the foreground, a man and a woman are lying on their stomachs on light blue inflatable mats, floating in crystal-clear turquoise water. The woman is wearing a pink and white polka-dot bikini and a straw hat, while the man is wearing dark shorts and a straw hat. They are holding hands. In the background, a lush green island with palm trees and a few buildings is visible under a clear blue sky. The water is so clear that the sandy bottom and some rocks are visible.

NEW CALEDONIA

New Caledonia offers a holiday experience that is both relaxing and stimulating at the same time. You could call it a land of refreshing contrasts. Fresh island produce is used to great effect in Gallic-inspired recipes. Gorgeous beaches are lined with European-style cafés and bars. You can laze away your days in sophisticated resorts or explore canyons, caves and shipwrecks.

And let's not overlook the wonders of nature. The main island, otherwise known as La Grande Terre, offers a stunning range of scenery. The 9,000 hectares of the Blue River Provincial Park shelter numerous bird species, including the flightless cagou – a bird that barks! You can also visit Kanak tribes in the valleys and be surrounded by beautiful settings that show off the island's tropical vegetation to stunning effect.

New Caledonia is big enough to offer an impressively diverse range of holiday experiences. The palm-shaded boulevards of Noumea offer a taste of the French Riviera, while the west coast is home to fabulous beaches and wide-open plains full of cattle ranches. The east coast is lush, with waterfalls and hidden valleys to discover. The offshore Loyalty Islands offer white-sand beaches and turquoise lagoons, while the Ile de Pins (Isle of Pines) is world-famous for its beauty.

While nature will get plenty of accolades we recommend making time to discover the cultural riches of New Caledonia as well. Visit the Tjibaou Centre in Noumea to learn about Kanak culture and immerse yourself in their art. Experience local arts, music and dances while tasting the finest local food and drink at the Noumea night market every Thursday. Play a game of petanque or try your hand at chess on a giant chessboard in the Place des Cocotiers, shaded by magnificent flame trees.

WESTERN SAMOA

Talofa lava and welcome to Samoa, the treasured islands of the South Pacific. Samoa is considered the heart of Polynesia. It has a 3000 year-old way of life called Fa'a Samoa that underpins a memorable visitor experience. Samoa is a postcard of natural beauty consisting of ten islands, each offering very distinct and different environments to explore. Blessed with stunning land and seascapes, and friendly people who are proud of their country, there are many versions of paradise to discover.

Drive around around in a day, or take a leisurely trip over a few days, or even tour by cycle over a week, or just base yourself at a resort and relax. From the rainforest covered rugged volcanic mountain peaks of Savai'i, to the vast valleys leading down to Upolu's coastline ringed with a necklace of white sandy beaches. Explore Samoa's lush green fertile valleys where banyan trees tower above the tropical rainforest canopy. Take time to cool down at a watering hole next to one of Samoa's many cascading waterfalls that drop into rivers cutting jagged lines through the valley floor as they make their way to the ocean.

The coastline is a wonder in itself, with sparkling white sand beaches, in some places stretching for miles, and here and there are walls of sheer cliffs that drop straight into the Pacific. Beyond the beaches out into the blue lagoons are scattered the rest of the islands that make up the Samoa archipelago, some inhabited, others with only wildlife, protected by the fringing coral reef that keep the powerful force of the Pacific Ocean at bay. And amongst all this natural beauty and picturesque valleys and coastline you will find nu'u or villages with their churches, meeting houses and open fale or homes encircling the malae or village green. Home to people proud of their strong Fa'a Samoa – cultural heritage – that live alongside these natural wonders.

For it's the people, culture and nature that give life to these islands.

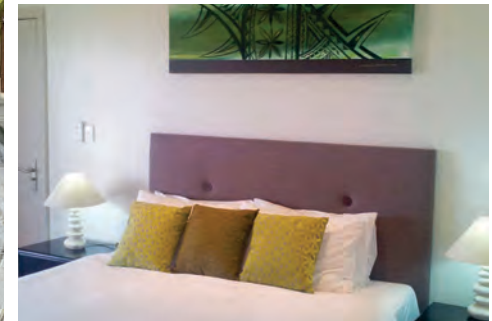

Aga Reef Resort is located in Lalomanu on the stunning south east coast of Upolu, only a short 5 minute drive from the beautiful white sands of Lalomanu Beach and 10 minutes away from the popular swimming spot at To Sua Trench. Nestled between a glorious tropical backdrop and the water's edge, the resort offers the perfect place to relax, unwind and enjoy a tropical escape. The Five Star boutique resort is a stylish mix of private waterfront villas and comfortable hotel rooms all air-conditioned and offering contemporary décor and stylish amenities with lovely ocean views.

The fresh water infinity pool is a great place to enjoy a refreshing dip and the clear, calm waters of the lagoon host an array of colourful tropical fish and provide a great spot for swimming and snorkeling. Tualupetu's Restaurant offers a great menu selection with fabulous ocean views and a large expanse of deck so that you can also enjoy al-fresco dining with the warmth of the sun on your back or under a moonlit sky. Aga Reef Resort is the place to head if you're wanting total peace and privacy.
